WASHINGTON, June 26 .- The national dem-WASHINGTON, June 26.—The national democratic committee and notification committee appointed by the late democratic convention to notify the president and vice president of their nomination for president and vice president, met at Arlington hotel today. The notification committee met at 10 o'clock, with Hon. P. A. Collins, of Massachusetts, in the chair, and Thomas S. Petit, of Kentucky, as secre-

The proceedings were conducted in secret session. The committee adjourned at 12 o'clock, and it was announced that it had decided to notify the president at 2 o'clock today, and also to leave Washington tomorrow evening for Columbus, Ohio, to notify Mr. Thurman. All the members of the committee were present at the meeting this morning, excepting E. R. Cockran, J. B. Proutt, John Fitzpatrick, Solomon Schen, and J. L. Cowan.

The notification committee, accompanied by members of the national democratic committee and Columbia democratic ciub, of the District of Columbia, met at Arlington hotel, at 1:30 this afternoen, and, forming into pairs, marched to the white house. They were ushered into the east room and ranged themselves in a circle in the south end of the room. Palms filled all the windows and alcoves in that portion of the room, and potted plants decorated the mantels.

The president was notified of their arrival and descended to the east room, accompanied by the following named persons: Mrs. Cleveland, Rev. William N. Cleveland, the president's brother, and wife, of Forest Portnay; Mrs. W. E. Hoyt, the president's sister, of Fayetteville, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Lamont, Mr. W. S. Bissell, of Buffalo, all of whom were present at the notification of his first nomination; Mr. Bayard, Mr. and Mrs. Fairchild, Mr. and Mrs. Dickinson, Mr. Benjamin Folsom and Speaker Carlisle.

Their approach was the signal for a general clapping of hands on the part of the visitors, and as soon as the party had taken their places, General Collins stepped forward and addressed the president as follows:

Mr. Clevchand; We come as a committee authorized and instructed by the national democratic convention, recently held at St. Louis, to convey the formal notice of its action in namitry yon for the office of president of the United States during the next four years. It would illy become the occasion of your pressence to express at length the full meaning and significance of that great assembly. Its expression will be found and beard elsewhere and pression will be found and beard elsewhere and pression will be found and beard elsewhere and pression will be found and beard elsewhere and when this free and intelligent people will record their approval of your great services as chief inagistrate.

We beg to oppgratulate you upon this hearty and unanimous indorsement of your course as president by the great historic party, to which in all the days of your manheod you have belonged, and to congratulate the country upon the assured continuance of your wise, just and patriotic administration.

Upon conclusion, Mr. Collius introduced Mr. Charles D. Jacob, of Kentucky, who read the following letter of notification.

Washington, June 25.—To Hon, Grover Cleveland, of New York—Sir. The delegates to the national democratic convention, representing every state and territory of our union, having assembled in the city of St. Louis, on the 5th instant, for the purpose of nominating candidates for the offices of president and vice president of the United States, it has become the honorable and pleasing duty of this committee to formally announce to you that, without ballot, you were, by acciamation, chosen as the standard bears of the democratic party for the chief executivessilp of this country at the election to be held in November next.

Great as is-such distinction under any circumstances, it is more flattering and profound when it is remembered that you have been selected as your own successor to an office the duties of which, always onerous, have been rendered in an extraordinary sensitive, difficult and delicate nature, because of the charge of political party and methods after twenty-four years of uninterrupted domination. This exaltation is, if possible, added to by the fact that the declaration of principles based upon your last annual message to the congress of the United States relative to tariff reduction and the dimunition of expenses of the government, throws down a direct and defiant challenge for the scrutiny of the administration of executive power which four years ago was committed in its trust to the election of Grover Cleveland, president of the United States, and for the most searching inquiry concerning its fealty and devotion to the pledges, which then invited the form, adopted at the national democratic convention. The president then said:

I cannot but be profoundly impressed when I see about me messengers of the national democracy bearing its summons to duty. The political party to which I owe allegaence both honors and commands me. It places in my hand its proud standard and bids me bear it high at the front in the battle, which it wages bravely, because conscious of right; confidently, because its trusts is in people, and soberly, because its crusts is in people, and soberly, because its crusts is in people, and soberly, because its only the increase which you bring awakens within me the liveliest sense of personal gratitude and satisfaction and the honor which you tender me is in itself so great that there might well be no room for any other sentiment and yet I cannot rid myself of grave and serious thoughts when I remember that party supremacy is not alone involved in the conflict which per see upon us, but that we struggle to secure and save cherished institutions, the welfare and happiness of a nation of free men. Familiarity with the great office which I hold has but added to my apprehension of its sacred character and the consectation demanded of him who assumes its immense responsibility.

It is the repository of the peoples will and power the great office which I hold has but added to my apprehension of its accred character and the consecration demanded of him who assumes its immense responsibility.

It is the repository of the péoples will and power and within its vision should be the protection and welfare of its humblest citizens and with a quick ear it should eatch, from the remotest corner of the landt the plea of the people, he who holds this office of theirs should resist every encroachment upon its legitimate functions, and for the sake of the interrity and usculness of the office, it should be kept near to the people, and be administered in full sympathy with their wants and needs.

This occasion reminds me, most vividly, of the seene when, four years ago, I received a message from my party similar to that which you now deliver. With all that has passed since that day, I can truly say that the tecling of a we—that which I heard summons then—is intensified many fold, when it is repeated now. Four years ago I knew that our chief executive office. If not carefully guarded, might drift, little by little, away from the people to whom it belonged and become the perversion of all it ought to be, but I did not know how much its moorings had already been loosened. I knew four years ago how well devised were the true principles of the true democracy for the successful operation of the government by the people and for the people, but I did not know how also lutely necessary their application then was for the restoration to the people of their safety and prosperity. I knew then that abuses and extravagances had crept into the management of public affairs, but I did not know their numerous forms nor the tenacity of their grasp. I knew then something of the bitterness of partisan obstruction, but I did show how bitter, how reckiess and how shameless it could be. [Prolonged applause]

I knew, too, that the American people were pariotic and just, but I did not know how grandly they over their country, nor how noble and generous they were. I shall not d a single consequence of a hair interpretation of my course.

It but remains for me to say to you, and through you to the democracy of the nation, that I accept the nomination with which they have honored me, and that I will, in due time, signify such acceptance in the usual formal manner.

The president's remarks were made in an earnest and emphatic manner and were frequently interrupted by applause.

Thus closed the speech-making, and then all present proceeded to the state dining room and partook of light refreshments. Afterward the committee became the guests of the Columbia club and were driven about the city.

THE AUTOGRAPH FIEND ON HAND And the Relie Hunter Gets in His Work-A eneral Hollday in Indianapolis-A Presentation to the General.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 26 .- The excitement of yesterday, caused by the nomination of General Harrison, continued during today, with a change of scene and incidents. The city is disposed to appreciate the novelty and honor of having a presidential candidate in the highest degree, and to get all the enjoyment possible out of it. The horn blowing, which hardly stopped during the night, resumed early this morning and has continued all day. The streets have been thronged with people, most of them wearing Harrison badges of

In addition to the city population large numbers have come in on trains from sur-rounding towns to swell the crowds. General Harrison was not at his office during the day, and his house was visited by large numbers of people. Several photographers and special artists were there taking views of the resiand surroundings. Authorized s were obtained for numerous illustrated papers. The autograph secker was on hand, and the relic hunter made a good beginning at chipping away the front fence. An electric light company is putting up some are lights on the lawn, and local committees are preparing a portable platform for use in the vicinity should there be occasion for making. All these indications are held by the local population to foreshadow a tidal wave of popular enthusiasm, and a repetition of the "Tippecanoe and Tyler too," campaign

The principal event of the day, outside of local demonstrations, was the arrival of a train from Chicago at 3:30, bringing delegates and visitors. The Vermont delegation came solid, with some from Massachusetts and other New England states, and a few from Virginia. The Georgia delegation also arrived. These were met at the depot by a great crowd of people, and fifty open carriages were on hand to receive them. They were accompanied by Hon. John C. New, member of the republican national committee, from this state, and other leading republicans, were escorted at once to the Har-rison residence, where an informal reception was held and no speeches were made, but there were many personal introductions and much hand-shaking.

At the conclusion of this, most of the party drove to the depot and resumed their journey. At dusk a double salute of cannon was fired and there was a general illumination by natural gas and electric lights. A ratification meeting had been called in the largest hall of the city, and this was preceded by a great out-greeted. Several delegates were among those who called, and among those whose visit most who called, and among those whose visit most deeply affected the general were about fifty survivors of his old regiment, the 70th Indiana, accompanied by some of the 129th Illinois, which formed a part of his brigade. The late comer included the California delegation and a pertion of New York. They were received at the depot and driven to the hotel where they took supper and thence to General Harrison's residence, where they had brief interview with supper and thence to General Harrison's residence, where they had brief interview with the candidate. A further installment fo Chicago pilgrims came on a late train arriving about 8 p. m. About this time the streets were a blaze with natural gas illuminations, several arches and pyramids of fire shooting their flames in the air. The sidewalks were even more crowded than last night and the confused din of cheering and horn blowing was continuous.

contused did of cheering and norn blowing was continuous.

After the veterans left the crowd patiently awaited the coming of the California delegation. It did not appear until after 10 o'clock, but the crowd was there when it came. It was headed 'by a committee of citizens, who presented the visitors to General and Mrs. Harrison.

The hour was late, and the visit was necessarily brief, and General Harrison merely exchanged greetings with the visitors. During the call of the Californians, Creed Haymond, chairman of the delegation, presented General Charman of the delegation, presented General Harrison with a handsomely engraved gold medal. When the California delegation left the general came out, and the great crowd showed no sign of dispersing and addressed them, expressing gratitude for the honor done him, but declining to discuss any political issues tonight.

CHICAGO, June 26.—Chairman Estee, of the republican convention, together with other del-egates, making in all six car-loods, left this morning for Indianapolis to congratulate Gen-eral Harrison on his nomination.

A SOLDIER'S DUTY.

Washington, June 26.—In the senate Mr. Plumb gave notice of an amendment to the sundry civil appropriation bill, providing that there shall not be purchased for the use of national soldiers' homes, any material or supplies, the result of convict labor.

On motion of Mr. Allison, the senate proceeded to the consideration of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill.

The bill was passed with sundry amendments—none of them important.

A message from the president returning, without his approval, the bill giving a pension to the widow of John A. Turly, was presented. The circumstances of the soldier's death was that he had interfered in an altercation with two other soldiers on a steamboat, and was pushed and struck by one of the parties, knocking his head against a plank and receiving a fatal injury. It is quite clear, the president says, that death was not the result of military service. If he had refrained from interference, says, that death was not the result of infinitry service. If he had refrained from interference, he would have saved himself and would have performed to the utmost his military duty.

Mr. Edmunds—I think that statement of the president shows that this woman is enti-tled to a pension. If it is not a part of a sol-dier's duty, without waiting the order of his captain, to try to stop an affray between his fellow soldiers, I do not know what the duty of a soldier is. I should like the senate to vote on this question.

Mr. Edmunds—There is no use in referring it. I want a vote on the president's message itself, but, as there is no quorum present, I move that the senate adjourn, leaving this message as unfinished business.

The motion was agreed to, and the senate, at 2:10 adjourned.

Washington, June 26.—On motion of Mr. Crisp, of Georgia, the house refused to concur in senate amendments to the Natchez, Miss., bridge bill, and asked for a conference.

The house then resumed consideration of the public land bill, by sections, for amendment. Most of the amendments which were adopted were in the nature of correction of the phraseology of the bill.

MORLEY'S MOTION.

Of Censure of the Government Defeated.

GLADSTONE SEVERELY CRITICISED But the Eloquent Old Gentleman Re to the Attack-Closing of the Reich stag-Other Foreign News.

LONDON, June 26 .- In the house of common today the debate was resumed on Mr. Morley's motion censuring the government for its administration of the Irish crimes act.

William O'Brien, nationalist, held that the plan of campaign never really troubled the people, and that they approved it. Nothing that had happened to individuals under the plan could compare with the sufferings of tenants without the plan. What had happened to tenants that could compare with the action of Irish landlords in flinging tens of thousands of Nora Fitzmaurices out of their homes to meet a worse fate? The disgust-ing clap-trap about crimes in Ire-land was what American politicians called the policy of the bloody shirt. It was a policy of far more hatred between peoples who desired to live in peace. The plan of campaign, so far from being a failure, was accepted ow even by landlords like Lord Massacrene. After two years of operation of the plan of campaign, there were 280 evicted tenants, out

Mr. Gladstone might have forgotten what words he used about the Parnellite chiefs, but that would not be attributed to the loss of memory through the infirmities of age.

Mr. Gladstone, who, upon rising, was received with cheers, said that however much he was afflicted with the loss of memory, through the infirmities of age, he hoped, for the time at any rate [renewed cheers], that he would remain able to cope with antagonists of the caliber of Mr. Chaplain. What was more significant about the state of Ireland than the fact that nineteen of the eighty-six nationalist members had been sent to prison. He ventured to say that if they went to their constituents all of these members would be returned by larger majorities than before, if only because they were sufferers through the wrong doing of the government, The government's vote might be against them, but their ultimate appeal was to public opinion.

It adds: It is generally believed in Germany that the Pester Lloyd represents Hungarian public opinion, and it would be interesting to know whether Hungarians indorse this article, if so, the friendly feelings expressed for Austro-Hungary in the speech from the throne yesterday would doubtless be much modified toward Hungary.

STORMS IN MEXICO. Towns Swept Away and Submerged-Great Loss of Life.

Loss of Lite.

City of Maxico, June 26.—Telegraphic communication which has been interrupted for several days by floods has been restored and particulars of the terrible disaster on the line of the Mexican central railway, particularly at Leon and Silao, are obtained. During the past ten days the table lands between here and Zacatecas have been visited by unprecedented rains. Every mountain rivulet along the central railway for more than 200 miles has been converted into a destructive torrent, and the valleys present the appearance of lakes. Many cities and towns have been inundated and Leon and Silao have been partially destroyed.

The houses in this country are almost universally of adobe, which soon become saturated, and when exposed to the action of a current of water rapidly fall to pieces. At Silao about 235 houses were destroyed, but it does not appear that there was any loss of life, the suffering being principally from exposure and scarcity of food.

At Leon, however, the climax of the flood came in the night, and the people were crushed or drowned in their falling houses and in endeavors to eccape to high ground. The town was in the center of a lake, which had formed about it from the sudden uprising of the river. Estimates of the loss rather increase than diminish as the investigation proceeds.

June 20th was the night of the great-crease than diminish as the investigation proceeds.

June 20th was the night of the greatest disaster. The very latest statement, just received, places the number of houses destroyed in Leon at 2,225 and homeless families at more than 10,000. More than 250 bodies have been recovered from the ruins, and there is no probability that the entire number will fall short of 700. A dispatch from El Paso places the estimate of loss far beyond that of Mexico advices. It says in the flooded district (not inclusive of Leon) 1,500 lives were lost, and that 1,000 bodies have been recovered. Leon is a city of 200,000 inhabitants, and a large part of it is in ruins. The Mexican collector of customs at Paso del Norte received an official dispatch, stating that 100 miles of Mexican railroad is impassable, and that it will be ten days before the mails can get through and twenty days before freight can be moved.

New Industries Springing Up All Over the CHATTANOOGA, June 26 .- The Tradesman's

CHATTANOOGA, June 26.—The Tradesman's quarterly report of new industries in the south for the quarter ending July 1, 1888, indicates no perceptible diminution in the progress of the southern states industrial development. Reports to the Tradesman of industries that have been actually organized during the ninety days, and where in most cases the erection of works has already commenced, shows the greatest progress in new woodworking estabworks has already commenced, shows the greatest progress in new woodworking establishments, the aggregate for the quarter being 137, Georgia leading with 31, and Tennessee second with 30. Thirty-eight street railroads companies were organized, Tennessee leading with 13. Forty-four railroad companies were formed and 62 mining and quarrying companies, Kentucky leading with ten. Forty-five foundries and machine shops were organized, Alabama leading with nine, Texas and Tennessee each with seven. Forty-three new cotton and woolen mills were formed, against forty-eight in the preceding quarter. Georgia leads this quarter with twelve, North Carolina second with nine. North Carolina second with nine. North Carolina second with step agratifying growth in the south. Last quarter there were twenty new companies formed and in this twenty-seven, West Virginia leading with seven, North Carolina second with five. Four boot and shoe factories were organized during the quarter, four heverying and two during the quarter, four breweries agricultural implement factories. To ber of new industries during the thre ing and mining interests of that state will exceed the average yearly value of all agricultural products. Moreover, the manufacturing and mining products will next year furnish fifty times as much freight to raitronds as the cotton of the state. What Alabama is doing in developing her industrial resources is being vigorously followed by every southern state.

DOVER'S FURNACE.

Tennessee People Jubilant Over a Recent Purchase.

Dover, Tenn., June 26.—[Special.]—The Dover, Tenn., June 26.—[Special.]—The Cumberland fron works property has been sold to northern capitalists and parties are here arranging the transfer. The property consists of about 46,000 acres of land, several hundred acres lying on the Cumberland river, which are considered the best farming lands in the county. Rich beds of fron ore are found in immense quantities around and near the Bear Spring furnace, and the fron from the ore has stood every test to which it has been put. Before the war a great many sugar kettles were made at the Dover furnace and shipped to the sugar plantations in the south, and were pronounced by them the best, as were also the plows which were modded at this furnace. And were pronounced by them the best, as were also the plows which were modded at this furnace and infact, everything necessary to make a success in the manufacture of iron is there. The consideration paid was something over $200,000.

Our people here are jubilant over the prospect of a new furnace. All our county needs to make it what it once was—the third wealthiest county in the state—are railroads and capital.

RALEIGH, N. C., June 26.—[Special.]—The man who is supposed to be Scott Partin, the wife and child murderer of thirteen years age, was brought here this morning at 1 o'clock. At early orning a large crowd gathered around the jail, id evinced morbid curiosity to know if he was the man. Several people who knew Partin thirteen years ago, who siept with him overload with him and associated with him in various ways, visited the jail today, but the prisoner has not been unanimously identified as Partin. Some think he is; others think otherwise. A reporter visited the prison today and interviewed him. The prisoner said:

My name is Leeson Forter. I was born on July 29th, 1850, at Port Oregon, in Ireland, province of Munster. I landed at Halifax, Nova Scotia, in the year 1873. I worked there and worked in various places in New England for awhile, and then I went to Florida and worked for a man named Archibald Higgs, of Gainesville, in hat state. At St. Johns, New Brunswick, I worked for a man named Archibald Higgs, of Gainesville, in that state. At St. Johns, New Brunswick, I worked for a man named Carson Flood. A remarkable part of the case is that the description given of Scott Partin in a proclamation issued by the governor offering a reward, in 1875, tallies precisely with the man now under arrest, and if it is not him the coincidence is wonderful.

At 8 o'clock this morning Rev. W. A. Candler accepted the presidency of Emory college.

Mr. Candler was born in Carroll county, Georgia, August 23d, 1857, and therefore enters upon the presidency of Emory college within a few weeks of his thirty-first birthday. He graduated from Emory college, July, 1875, taking the first honor. O t of twenty-six votes in the board of trustees, Dr. Candler received twenty-three. It is known that Senator Colquitt would have voted for him had he been present. The board on Saturday telegraphed Dr. Candler, requesting him to come at once to Oxford. About 11 o'clock Monday he walked upon the stage with Dr. Haygood, president of the board, and was received with an ovation Oxford never saw the like of before. The audience went wild, the band followed with "Dixie," the students adding the full force of their lungs in cheers, Dr. Ropkins shook hands with him, his successor, Dr. Calloway and Professor Stone, with many trustees, with warm salutations, and the other prefessors, who were present, followed. It was a senwarm shittations, and the other professors, who were present, followed. It was a scene rarely witnessed. The new president has succeeded in everything he has attempted. He has pulpit and platform power, business sense, untiring energy, courage without end, and is withal a man who knows the people and keeps with them and leads the way.

Very great skill was displayed in the arrangement of the programme, and its rendition by the sudents was beyond doubt unexcelled. Savannah, Ga., June 26.—[Special.]—There was a great deal of talk today among the liquor men over a warning which Judge Adams dropped yesterday. A. N. Winkler was tried for keeping open a tippling house on Sunday. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty. Judge Adams made the sentence one hundred dollars. In passing sentence his honor said that in this case he would make the fine light, as the jury had recommended the defendant to the extreme mercy of the court. Continuing, Judge Adams stated that he has increased the severity of the sentences from time to time in these Sunday liquor cases, but he regretted that the penalties have not had the effect of stopping violations of the law. Henceforth, in cases of conviction, he said the court will add imprisonment to the fines. in cases of conviction, he said add imprisonment to the fines.

VILLA RICA, Ga., June 26.—[Special.]—Mr. Richard Tolbert died his morning at 6 o'clock. "Uncle Dick," as he was commonly called, was an extraordinary man physically. He was near eighty years of age and never had a spell of sickness before. Has been on the mines around old Villa Rica for about fifty years, and the accident that befell him lately was the first that ever happened to him.

He leaves a wife and a large family of boys and girls to mourn his death, but fortunately he lived to see them all grown, his youngest a son now about éighteen years of age.

She Attacks Another of Her Sex in a Real Estate Office. NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 26 .- [Special.]here was a big excitement on Union street this afrnoon. Two women appeared to be watching the door of a prominent real estate office, when sud-denly one of them darted in, and there was yelling inside. The startled clerks saw a woman walk riskly in and, approaching another woman who was paying her rent, jumped on her and proceeded to pound her and jerk her all over the house. All the clerks but one jumped out of the window, but this one tried to get the women apart and got badly scratched himself. The attacked party did not resist and could not get out of the way. When they were separated it was found that the battered party was Mrs. Boyd, an assignation house keeper, and the as-

Second race, 4 of a mile, Leable won, Sam Wood second, Aureria third. Time, 1:17.
Third race, mile and 3-16. Tristam won, Tea Tray second, Charley Drenix third. Time, 2:06. Tristam and Tea Tray had a terrife fight all the way down the home stretch. Tea Tray steadily gained on his leader, and a couple of strides from the judges' stand apparently headed him. As they nassed the judges' line, he appeared to be heading front of "Triestam, and there were loud cheers and shouts of "Tea Tray wins." A moment later and Triestam's number was hung un, and immediately the cheers were changed to hisses. An angry crowd surround-of the judges' stand and clamored for a reversal of the decision. This was declined, and some of the crowd became so demonstrative that the police had to be invoked to quiet them. Lucius Appleby is rejorded to have won $30,600 on this race. In consequence of the judges' decision the Dwyers scratched all their hois si the following races, and it is reported that they intend taking all their horses from the track. THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE. A Strong Article Showing Its Benefits to the

From the Southern Farmers' Alliance.

We regret to note a disposition on the part of some of our friends and contemporaries to make wholesale denunciation of our state department of agriculture, coupled frequently with the demand for its entire abolition. Surely our friends cannot be acquainted with the objects for which the department was organized, or with the history of the active, persis ent and self-sacrificing efforts which were made for a number of years by some of the most intelligent, wise and patriotic of our farmer-citizens to bring about its establishment. The department of agriculture was created to do certain things for the benefit of the farmers of Georgia, which the farmers themselves as individuals, could not do, and which it was necessary should be done not do, and which it was necessary should be done including our own, has such an official bureau, and that in every state in the union there is an official stablishment of this or similar character. The ap-reciation which the farmers of the country, as a hole, have of the national department of agriscouragement which attended its initial creation; it would be possible for our people to take at this putribute immensely to the advantage of our com-community, leads us to take this broad but positive posi-tion on this subject in general. not do, and which it was necessary should be done in order that our people should keep abreast of the progress of the times. Our space forbids the enumeration of the purposes for which it was created, but these were set forth fully in the account of its establishment. That such an official establishment is wise, proper and necessary is evidenced by the fact that every civilized nation on the face of the earth, including our own, has such an official bureau, and culture is shown by the recent passage by congress of a bill creating the com-missioner of agriculture a cabinet officer. In the light of history and our present industrial con-dition, remembering the labor, the difficulty, the witnessing the efforts everywhere being made to advance the dignity of the profession of farming; and to bring to its aid all the scientific, statistical and organizing assistance possible, surely this is no time to talk of abotishing the 'one department of the state government devoted exclusively to the in-terests of and uses of the farmer. We should regard such an action as the longest step backward which time. Our profound interest in the advancement of our farmers, our keen desire that nothing should be done to cheek this advancement, our observation of the values of such agencies in other communities and our firm conviction that such an agency should that our own particular state department is not as efficient as we would like to have it, or as it might be made. It is possible that the laws governing it are not such as to secure the greatest efficiency. It is possible that the administration of the departfailness. We cannot say, for we do not know. On these matters of detail we are not in formed. And while we are unalterably opposed to the abolition of the department we are by no means opposed to such changes in the stat-utes, or such reforms in its methods as may be nec-essary to secure and increase the usefulness of this important arm of the state government. Far from into the state government. Far non-it, It will be our pleasure to advocate fearlessly and zealously such changes as may be shown to be proper to this end. And we think all farmers, and especially all members of the alliance, should join hands with us in this determination. We will undertake to publish—and with pleasure—any com-munications exposing such weaknesses in our present department as may exist, or suggesting measures by which it may be strengthened. Upon one thing only shall we insist-namely, that the com by a disinterested desire genuinely to improve the conduct of the department, and to make it of more value to the farmer. We shall also, ourselves from time to time take occasion to express our ow views on the subject as they may be formed from an investigation of matters as they now exist. And we are sure the present commis-sioner of agriculture and the other officers of the department will cheerfully second our efforts in this direction. We are reformers but not iconoclasts. We are willing to improve but not to pull down. We commend these thoughts to the earnest consideration of our readers. If a certain school in a neighborhood were not educating the children as well as could be wished, because of a lack of means to keep the school open a sufficient without losing what of good has been already had, more might be added therete. We earnestly beg out members, therefore, to stand by the department of agriculture. Criticise it fearlessly, but fairly and honestly; investigate its workings; improve it; insist that it shall be as perfect as possible, but stand by it, for it belongs to the farmer; it is, or can be made, an agency of immense benefit to the farmer, and if we should lose it we should suffer. in our opinion, an irreparable loss, A. C. Keily Again. EDITORS CONSTITUTION: We observed in last Thursday's issue of your valuable paper a notice of the arrest and imprisonment of A. C. Now, is lit customary in your city to have people arrested without any charge? Can anybody wire to police headquarters and have a passenger on any of the trains arrested and imprisoned on his own option, not even stating any charge? Or, is it possible that these officers have, in their haste, stepped a little beyond the line? We hope Kelley's lawyers will investigate that before it is over. hope Kelley's lawyers will investigate that before it is over.

Mr. Kelly returned to Macon on Friday and stood his trial and was released on his own bond. A rather thin case that would seem to indicate. And the circumstances seem to show, as far as we have gathered them, that the prosecution was malicious. Mr. A. C. Keiley is well and favorably Known here, and is a young man of good character. We have never heard aught against him before. And we believe there is nothing intentionally wrong or crooked in his case this time. We think it due him that this statement should be made. And since you published the statement last Thursday relative to nis arrest, etc., we hope you will also publish this.

A "time convention" of representatives of the leading southern roads and their connections for the north and northwest, met at the Kimball house yesterday morning. They came together for the purpose of arranging a fast schedule for the shipment of oranges, melons and other perishable fruit from Georgia and Florida points, and the schedule is an assured fact. It is a very important arrangement for southern fruit growers, reducing the time be-tween Jacksonville and Chicago to about seventy hours, and to fifty hours from Atlanta, being absent, visiting his son in Canton, Ga.

Routine matters occupied the attention of the commissioners, the only matter of public interest being the countlaint of Bishop W. J. Caines, whose niece was ejected from a train on the Georgia railroad.

The bishop makes an additional complaint, charging the Georgia road with farnishing inferior cars for the accommodation of colored geopic, and demanding first-class cars, and first-class fare for seats therein.

The commission will hear the arguments in this case at their next regular meeting, July 31.

Ala., and Macon and Columbus, Ga., have been talking about the hint given in that interview that Macon might lose the Central's shops. It was incidentally mentioned by Major Belkmap that if the shors were removed from Macon Columbus or Birmingham would be selected. This has inaugurated a three-cornered bit of rivalry, but Macon still has the shops.

Albany, Ga., June 26.—[Special.]—Sneak thieves entered a room occupied by three young men. They brought their trousers out on the porch, rified the pockets, carried off the money, and placed the watches and pocket knives in a bunch, piling the pants on top of them and leaving them in the moonlight, Their entire haul amounted to seventy-eight cents, there being three new coppers in the booty, which they doubtiess took for gold pieces. One of the slumberers was a Macon lawyer of goodly cirth. Had the trousers been carried off, he would have bad to stay over until a tailor could have remedied the difficulty, as no clothier could have supplied him.

President Salomon Pays Two of his Ministers

$5,600 Each to Accept Banishment.

FORT MONROE, June 24.—The little Yantic, Commander Heyerman, came in and anchored in the roads, having made the trip from Santiago de Cuba in the quick time of six days and a half. The Yantic reports that the troubles that called her to Port au Prince were over when she arrived. The people are taxed beyond their endurance, and the recent large amounts paid as indemnities to foreign powers have still further added to their burdens. The mulatto faction is arrayed against the blacks, the president being at the head of the latter party, and his advanced age and present state of health is the primary cause of trouble, giving a chance for aspiring members of his cabinet.

state of health is the primary cause of trouble, giving a chance for aspiring members of his cabinet.

During the latter part of May two of his ministers—Generals Manigat and Legitime—were discovered in a plot to overthrow him. The people flew to arms, the city was in a perfect cyclone of excitement, and, as is usual at such times, a large portion of their venom was directed against the whites, whose lives, as well as property, were in danger. The president ordered the arrest of the ministers, and their friends prepared to resist what they considered a high-handed action. The diplomatic corps asked the president to withdraw his order and attempt an amicable arrangement. He refused, and immediately they telegraphed their respective governments for men of war to be dispatched at once to the scene of disturbance. There being no telegraphic station within one hundred and twenty miles of Port au Prince, nows in that section of the world travels very slowly. When the Yantic arrived the president had seceeded in bringing about something of a compromise, and had bribed the two ministers with $5,000 each to accept banishment—Legitime to Kingston and Manigat to Santiago de Cuba—which settled the row for the time being, and the excitement abated. Every one is firmly convinced that the former will again be heard from. He is a mulatto, and, although in the cabinet, is known to be fully in sympathy with the mulatto faction, or, in other words, the opposition. He is a man of more than ordinary ability, and, being unscrupulous and determined, is generally considered as being very dangerous, and was no loubt taken in the cabinet as a compromise with the party to which he belongs. It is freely conceded on all sides net as a compromise with the party to which he belongs. It is freely conceded on all sides that, until President Salomon dies or is suc-ceded, there can be no hope of a permanent peace in Hayti.

SAW HIM IN HIS BURIAL CLOTHES. Alleged Premonitions of Death in the Case of Alleged Premonitions of Death in the Case of Dr. Warren S. Stokes.

Boston, June 24—The death on Monday of Dr. Warren S. Stokes was associated with some remarkable facts which have just come to light. He belonged to a secret brotherhood having headquarters in New York, whose purpose is the development of visions by thought docalization by means of a crystal, or prism, upon which the members concentrate their minds with, in this case, astonishing results. Early in the month a member declared that he saw in the crystal the outlines of a human form exactly like Stokes's tossing wildly about on a sick bed. Another member saw a coffin, and third the letter "S." They then knew these signs were premonitions of misfortune to Dr. Stokes. As if to justify this opinion a fourth member, who is an astrologist, searched for the doctor's horoscope in his book and found that June would be a dangerous month for him, and cautioned the doctor to beware of infectious diseases.

Previous to this the doctor called on a lady friend on Beacon street who is a member of the brothefhood. As he entered, dressed in black, she says she saw his double walking before him in transparent form. She remarked to her husband; "Dr. Stokes is in his burial clothes. I know it. I am sure of it."

Two weeks ago last Saturday Dr. Stokes was vaccinated by a brother physician, Dr. Frank H. Wallace. The virus was impure and caused blood poisoning to set in, which caused the dector's death on Monday, at the city hospital. He had lingered unconscious during the two weeks, showing symptoms of hydrophobia. Two special agents of the organization are here from New York investigating the case. They declare that they will prosecute Dr. Wallace, Dr. Pettee and Mrs. Tilton—the latter two as accessories after the fact. Dr. James Stokes, of St. Johnsbury, Vt., a brother, is here to take charge of the Dr. Warren S. Stokes.

by a noise in his front yard and the barking of the watch dog. He got up and went out and found a mysterious looking basket on the front porch. On examination, a white male child, about three months old, was found in the basket. There was also an anonymous letter in the basket from the boy's mother, in which she stated that she loved the child, but the life she was leading made it impossible for her to raise the boy properly, so she turned it over to the tender care and keeping of the Hyatts, The mother is unknown. The child is in perfect health, and will be adopted and raised by Mr. and Mrs. Hyatt, who have no children of their own.

Penny Letter Postage and Its Advocates. The penny letter postage plank in the re-publican platform is already under discus-

Great questions of political economy, pol scies involving the welfare of the country, and the possibilities of peace or war are presented in the platform, but they are lightly skipped by thousands of readers whose at tention is concentrated upon one thing-the mmendation to reduce letter postage to

Our present rates of postage are low If there is any burden in the toll exacted it falls mainly upon those who are able to bear it. Business men are the great letter-writers, and in the nature of things it takes wealthy or well-to-do people to transact business. The man who finds it hard to raise two cents does not write more than three or four letters a year. Poor people do not care about sending letters to anybody, and they rarely receive any that call for an

The average letter writer does not care whether he pays two cents or one cent for a stamp. But when you strike a man who never uses the mails you are tolerably certain to find a howling advocate of penny

The other day a clever citizen, who had signified his enthusiastic approval of this plank in the Chicago platform, was asked how many stamps he had purchased during the past twelve months. The advocate of cheap postage after a moment's deep thought frankly admitted that he had sent off only one letter in two years!

Perhaps this is not an exceptional case. The cheap postage plank will not loom up as an important factor in the campaign when the people become familiar with it. In fact, it is not putting it too strongly to say that it is the most ridiculous piece of demagogy in the whole platform.

It is a remarkable fact that when the colored brethren at Chicago found out how liberal Alger is they shouted for him in the old-time plantation style.

Facts and Religion. Emmett Womack made a happy hit in his Atlanta speech when he said that it scemed as if the Chicago convention was being furnished with facts by Fred Douglass, and religion by Bob Ingersoll. This is not far from being a true statement of the case. Among the first things that the convention did was to call on Douglass for a speech, and he replied by giving the bloody shirt the first vigorous shake which it had received in the convention, He charged that there were a million negroes disfranchised in the south, and put the whole blame on the intimidation and suppression of the democracy. The convention took this as the tune of its proceedings, and nearly all of the speakers tried to keep in

They all went wild over Bob Ingersoll until he made a fool of himself in his Gresham speech. From the very beginning, Ingersoll occupied a prominent seat next to the chairman, and he was called on continnously until he responded. The proceedings were opened with prayer each morning, and as the preacher finished, he would invariably resume the seat provided for him near Ingersoll.

Indeed Douglass and Ingersoll were two of the shining lights of the convention; and if the republican party follows. Ingersoll as closely as it does Douglass, it will have no need for preachers at its next convention, or rather, it will have more need for them than ever, but they would be out of place.

It is said that Harrison was once a know-nothing. He has been nominated by the right party, and he will be defeated by the right people.

"Little Breeches."

One of the most interesting results of the republican convention at Chicago was the surprising spectacle which J. Benson Foraker, of Ohio, made of himself. It was remarked by all the correspondents gathered there that the busiest and most restless member of the convention was the governor of Ohio. He was as fidgetty in his movements and as uppish in his attitude as the small dog that answers to the name of fice.

It was the idea in some parts of the hall that the purpose of the convention in assembling together was, first, to give J. Benson Foraker an opportunity of exhibiting himself, and, second, to make a platform and nominate a ticket.

The Foraker part of the programme was carried out to perfection, whatever may be said of the rest. The governor was at the head of the Ohio delegation, and it fell to his lot to put Sherman in nomination. As he strode toward the platform it was plain that he meant business. His eyes flashed fire, his mustache bristled with indignation, and if his pantaloons had been rolled up, the muscles of his hind-legs might have been seen palpitating with patriotic emotion.

It was a scene never to be forgotten. Observing the ferocity that displayed itself on Foraker's classic face, the audience cheered wildly. The moment was icious. Pulling a string concealed in his coat-tail pocket, a huge banner suddenly appeared before the startled mul-In the middle was a hale and hearty picture of Foraker in his celebrated two-horse act of exclaiming-"No rebel flags shall be removed from Ohio while I am governor,"

Strange to say, this trick didn't work. The convention caught on in an instant, and matters were not improved when J. Benson, with a wild and tragic air waved the banner out of sight. Those who witsed the remarkable spectacle knew that everything had been prearranged, and they w that before them stood a man who, hough he was pledged to John Sherman, was in the convention to forward his own conal interests by every means in his ever. He nominated Sherman by insulting the friends of all the other candidates. and then delivered a bloody-shirt harangue

From that moment the real friends of Sherman knew that they would have to keep a sharp eye on the little trickster from Ohio. They kept their eye on him, but it did no good. He was determined to make himself picuous, and he did so at the wrong time by declaring for Blaine. It was at this juncture that John Sherman sent Foraker telegram to this effect: "Would you ac cept second place on a ticket with Blaine?"

This is red-hot sarcasm, but it was justified by Foraker's antics. His reply to the telegram has not been made public, and the probability is that he thinks it would be beeath the dignity of the great leader of the republican party to make any reply, but the inquiry must have stung him, for we are told that even treachery has its tender

'The Georgia Melon Crop Several years ago, when THE CONSTITU-TION was engaged in booming the truck and fruit business of southern and southwest Georgia—showing the possibilities and probabilities of its development-some of our estcemed contemporaries predicted that if the farmers followed the advice of this paper they would be ruined.

Particularly was this prediction made in regard to the melon business. THE CON-STITUTION advised the farmers to make the experiment of shipping melons to the north and west so as to create a demand for this delicious fruit and thus create a profitable market. Up to that time, very few people of the great north and west knew anything of the genuine watermelon-the Georgia variety-and THE CONSTITUTION advised the farmers of Georgia to make the experiment of shipping the fruit.

The first year, those who had the nerve to ollow THE CONSTITUTION'S advice were so successful that a great many others engaged in the business, and the increase of shipments was so large, and the farmers had so little experience in the business that the most profitable markets were glutted, and a good deal of money was lost. The farmers were discouraged, and the aforesaid esteemed contemporaries pointed "with pardonable pride" to their predictions. And yet, how has the experiment turned out? The glutted markets of a few years ago are now clamoring for Georgia watermelons, although the crop is larger this year than ever before in the history of the state. The demand in the west and north is so great that, according to the Albany News and Advertiser, the railroads of that section are unable to furnish fruit cars in sufficient numbers to transport the melons to market. One shipper in Albany received last Friday telegraphic orders for several car-loads, but was unable to fill them on account of lack of fruit cars. .

The railroads, however, are doing their best and we have no doubt that the blockade has been raised by this time. But what does it all show? Simply this! That THE Constitution was right when it advised farmers to engage in the business, and that the demand for good melons is practically inexhaustible. The News and Advertiser says that one thing has been conclusively demonstrated, namely: "That under judicious distribution, and the present facilities for moving the melon crop, the markets cannot be glutted. There has been a larger number of cars forwarded to date this sea son than ever before."

All of which justifies every line THE CONSTITUTION has ever printed on the sub-Signifying Nothing.

In the last moments of the Chicago con vention the following plank was added to the republican platform:

The concern of all good governments is the virtue and sobriety of the people, and the purity of their homes. The republican party cordially sym nathizes with all wise and well-directed efforts fo he promotion of temperance and morality.

As the outcome of a week's drunk this plank will be regarded as one of the notable curiosities of the campaign. The delegates. bursting with beer and popskull whisky, adopted it with enthusiasm, only one man in the crowd voting against it. It will be seen that not a word is said in favor of prohibition, local option or the antisaloon movement. The convention simply expressed its sympathy with wise and well directed efforts for the promotion of temperance and morality.

Now, this is not the language of prohibitionists. It sounds like a resolution adopted at a meeting of saloon men. The liquor men are always indulging in such talk. They have more to say in favor of temperance than any other class of men, Temperance is a big thing with a bar keeper. From his standpoint it means the moderate use of iquor, and the temperate customer in the ong run pays more money to the saloon than comes out of the pocket of the intemperate drinker.

This part of the platform, then, is meaningless jargon, mere flub dub. It will not catch a single prohibition vote. Perhaps the emptiness of this pledge will cause keen eyed observers to discover that the whole business is equally hollow and empty.

IT IS GENERALLY understood that John Sherman will never have his washing done at the white house.

Sherman and the "Man from Michigan. Senator Sherman evidently does not feel kindly disposed towards Governor Alger, of Michigan, to whom he alludes in a recent interview as "the man from Michigan."

The trouble between these two distinguished republican leaders seems to have arisen out of the fact that Alger captured a great many of the southern fish which Sherman thought ought to have drifted into his net. The Ohio senator is severe on the Michigan governor, and very clearly insinuates that the division in the southern vote was brought about by improper methods on the part of his competitor. In the interview he says: Some of the delegates from the south, who ar some of the delegates from the south, who are naturally supposed to be for me, knowing that I have always been a friend of the south, have voted for Mr. Alger. It has been openly sald in Chicago, although, of course, I do not know how true it is, that money considerations have influenced their action. get the votes of the southern delegates at the proper time, as per contract.

While Senator Sherman is a millionaire, Governor Alger is several times so, and it is apparent that the southern delegates tumbled to the highest bid. Of course we don't charge this ourselves, for we are not inclined to be so severe with our republican brothers amongst us; but Senator Sherman himself is responsible for the charge, and under the circumstances Senator Sherman ought to know what he is talking about.

GOVERNOR FORAKER, OF Ohio, by his course in the convention thoroughly established the fact that the estimate of the public concerning his alleged support of Sherman was correct Nobody ever believed that Foraker heart for Sherman, and the Sherman leaders suspected all the time that Foraker would stab him in the back whenever the opportunity occurred. In what striking contrast does his position appear with that of William McKin-ley, who stood by Sherman to the last—even when he might have gotten the nomination nimself had he sought it. Foraker deserted Sherman Saturday night, and openly an-nounced that from that time on he was a free lance. This action probably settles Foraker's political life in Ohio, for the Sherman men are indignant at his course, in which he proved himself to be a traitor. Everything considered, Ohio's governor is an exceedingly small man.

HENRY CLAY, TUCK, who has just been nominated by the democracy of Clark county to represent that county in the next legislature, will probably be one of the youngest members of that body, but there will be few brighter heads on the shoulders of even older members. Mr. Tuck is quite slender in stature, and bear a striking resemblance to the late Governor years of age, is a brilliant speaker, and possesses one of the brightest minds of the rising young men of the state. #### FOR FAT PEOPLE.

The Schweninger Treatment for Obesity in This Country.

No I iquids at Meals Its Most Important Re quirement—It Does Not Agree With Every One—Its Trials and Triumphs.

From the New York Sun. The system of Professor Ernst Schweninge for the treatment of obesity, which was introduced here about two years ago, has by this time been sufficiently tested to demonstrate that anybody who will determinedly follow the regimen prescribed by it can reduce his flesh to any reasonable degree desired, it being understood, of course, that his physical condition is not such, by reason of incurable heart disease, as to make reduction perilous. And there is just one thing about it that is hard to get used to. That is the absolute prohibition of all liquids during meals and for an hour of all liquids during meals and for an hour before and an hour after each meal. It does not seem so difficult to do without fluids to wash down one's food until it is tried, and the iron pressure of habit in sipping and even gulping water, wine, milk, tea, or coffee while eating is realized. The very fact of prohibit tion seems to make one more intensely thirsty, and the juciest food takes on the astringen, dryness of chewed pomegranate rind. Of and the judiest food takes on the astringen, dryness of chewed pomegranate rind. Of course, one becomes accustomed to it after awhile, eventually does not feel any desire fos liquids at the prohibited times, and even findr less disposition to drink at any time than he ever had before. Then his reward comes, not only in the reduction of flesh, but in a surprising diminution of the nuisance of perspiration. ng diminution of the nuisance of perspiration, which is the misery of all fat men. But to get to that point one requires to have such determined force of will and power of self-denial as, if developed in a spiritual instead of a merely physical direction, would make him a lofty sort of angel. The writer of this paragraph has tried it, and leliberately arrived at the conclusion that, fat deliberately arrived at the conclusion that, fat as he is, he would rather get to be nine feet thick and die, than keep it up. But those who have stuck to it have gained the reward they so richly deserved. One lady on Fifty-second street was reduced by it fifty-four pounds in three months, is still losing flesh at the same rate, and avers that she has never enjoyed bet-ter health in her life than since commencing the health in her life than since commencing the treatment. And now she has got so that she seldom has a desire for a sip of any liquid even outside the hours of prohibition.

It must not be supposed that this shutting off of liquids is the whole of the treatment, off of liquids is the whole of the treatment, though it appears to be the most important requirement. That ranking next to it is that one must not gorge with food, especially food in which sugar and starch are largely component parts. The only case in which the treatment has been a conspicuous failure, has been that of a lady in Danbury, Conn., who, after the preliminary course of medicine to get her digestive and assimilative apparatus in order, found herself possessed of such a ferceious appetite, and felt so well that she would eat and drink as much as she pleased, and as often as she chose, of whatever she liked—with the result that might have been expected. Her ous band came down to town, and told the doctor he might just as well give up all attempts to band came down to town, and told the doctor he might just as well give up all attempts to reduce her, and he did.

Dr. J. W. Gibbs, the independent republican who when a delegate to the county conven-tion, rose up in disgust and sudden reform, told his few delegates to go to thunder and himself went out and joined the democracy, and subsequently record every. Nicellite every himself went out and joined the democracy, and subsequently scared every Nicollite away from the Hoffman house by the offer of a $75,-000 bet on Fellows, was the man who brought the Schweninger system here, having gone over to Germany for the purpose of getting it and purchased the knowledge of it from the originator. He says that he has proved its efficacy so thoroughly that he is confident of reducing obesity in any one who should be reduced and who will follow his directions, but he will not take all cases. A very fat young man, not over 30 years of age, came to him from Pennsylvania for treatment. Upon investigation he found that the man's heart was weak, and nature, to protect it, had beart was weak, and nature, to protect it, had built up a wall of fat around it. To take away that fat would have rendered him liable to death at any moment. One of the Pennsylvanian's brothers and his father had died of heart disease, and his doing likewise was only question of time. However, willing to take a question of time. He was willing to take chances on it, but Dr. Gibbs was not, and the case was positively refused. Another case, that of a very wealthy New York lady, well known in society, was refused because of the frightful and probable incurable condition of her kidneys, which were so affected that she could not have endured the process of reduction.

These cases ht mentioned to emphasize the warning that it is a risky thing for a fat person to commence monkeying with his adipose tissue by the light of his own intelligence and the general information that newspapers give him. By the Schweninger system each person's case must be treated according to its individual requirements, and is not necessarily like any other.

Another thing about which Dr. Gibbs lifts up his voice is the mendacious and dangerous paragraph somebody has set floating in the press to the effect that the true Schweninger treatment has at last been discovered to be the These cases he mentioned to emphasize the Starvation a la Banting, and the nostrum cures that profess to reduce gluttons while practicing gluttony if they will only "take a wineglassful at each meal," are alike dangerous humbugs. Renouncing liquids seems to be demonstrated the safest and best thing when accompanied by due moderation in cating. But in no case is tabsolutely safe for a fat person to adopt any really effective measures for reducing weight without thorough preliminary knowledge of the actual condition of his vital organs.

How South Carolina Views Harrison's Nomination.

CHARLESTON, S. C., June 26.—[Special.]—The announcement of the nomination of Harrison at Chicago fell like a thunder clap in this community. The bulletin boards were crowded with people soon after the first despatch was received from Chicago. Democrats and republicans were equally anxious for news. Blaine's first cablegram beseeching his friends to stand by his Paris letter was received with smiles and jeers. The announcement of Harrison's nomination demoralized the democrats and puzzled the republicans. Leading democrats here saw that Harrison's nomination is the strongest card that the republicans could play. Harrison, they say, is a clean man, and will consolidate the entire strength of the republican party and bring the mugwumps back to the fold. A prominent democrat politician said teday that the nomination of Harson changed the entire phase of the fight. With Blaine or Sherman or Gresham or Alger at the head of the republican ticket, the democrats could have won in a canter. Harrison's nomination makes the fight an unpleasantly close one. If Harrison should beat Thurman in Indiana he will require only four electoral voies to win. These he can get either in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.

All of the leading republicans of this state are in Chicago, and those that are here know very little of Harrison. What has astounded and puzzled them is the vote of the South Carolina delegation. They are at a loss to understand why their delegates at Chicago didn't

The Southern Literary Circle Discuss the "Genius."

Dr. Chaney Reads a Brief Biography, Char-ley Logan "The Bells," and Professor Tugwell "The Raven."

Despite the inclement weather last night a number of ladies and gentlemen attended the meeting of the Southern Literary Circle at the Library rooms.

The subject for discussion was the life and works of Edgar Allen Poe.

Dr. George Leonard Chaney opened the exercises by reading a brief but comprehensive abridgement of Poe's life.

abridgement of Poe's life.

"A spoiled child," said he, "makes an uncomfortable man. Poe was undoubtedly spoiled child. He was reared in an atmosphere of luxury, pride and admiration."

After brief allusion to his school life, Dr. Chency said:

man of brilliant repute, married and settled in Richmond."

"In 1845 he wrote the 'Raven,' which first appeared in the American Magazine. He received only $10 for this remarkable poem."

He went on to tell how, on the 7th of October, 1850, Poe died in the city of Baltimore, at the age of forty. Arriving in that city during a warm election, the poet got on a terrible spree. He is said to have fallen in with some reckless companions, who carried him around to eleven precincts, at each of which he voted. He was found at night in a state of beastly intoxication lying in the street. He was removed to the hospital in an unconscious condition. After some time he opened his eyes and looking around him in a dazed way said:

"Where am I?"

"Among your friends," some one replied.

"My best friend," gasped the unfortunate man, "would be he who would blow my brains out."

A short time after this remark he expired.
Mr. Charles T. Legan was now introduced and read "The Bells." Mr. Logan said that he had heard the poem read only a few times. It was a voice piece. He had not seen it for a great many months. He would not attempt to give this very difficult piece with the proper elocutionary effect. But notwithstanding all this Mr. Logan read the poem remarkably well. His conception was excellent, and the rendition of the piece was thoroughly enjoyed.

Tim Campbell's Awful Threat. WASHINGTON, June 26. - Tim Campbell is intensely patriotic. He is first for New York and then for the American flag. He has been greatly annoyed at the assurance of certain members on the republican side of the house who, since the bandana was adopted as the democratic ensign have coolly appropriated the stars and stripes for their own. A number of red, white and blue silk handkerchiefs have been distributed among the republican members, who lose no occasion to flaunt them in the faces of their colleagues who display the bandana. It is said that Tim Campbell chanced to enter a well-known saloon a night or two ago in quest of "cold tea." As he approached the bar he caught sight of a republican member fiercely.

"A handkerchief," replied the member, backing "A nandkerchief," replied the member, backing away from the bar.

"That's the American flag sir," exclaimed Tim, shaking his fist aloft, "and its proper place is flying over the court house in New York City. If I catch you wiping your nose on it again, sir, I'll break your head."

WASHINGTON, June 26 .- Representative Whithorne today, from the committee on navat affairs, reported to the house the bill agreed upon by the committee for the enrollment of naval militial and organization of naval reserve forces. The committee's report upon the bill is a strong argument in favor of the policy outlined in the bill creating the maritime militia, which shall be to the navy what our militia is to the regular army, a reserve from which could be drawn; in an emergency, a large force of trained seamen available for war-like services.

COLUMBIA, S. C., June 26 .- Yesterday morning, near Sumter, a negro boy, returning from mill, lay down beside the railroad track for a nap, resting his head on the end of a crosstie. While he was nalsep a freight train came along and the cowcatcher of the engine struck him on the head, indicting fatal injuries.

Will.

There is no chance, no destiny, no fate
Can circumvent, or hinder, or control
The firm resolve of a determined soul.
Gifts count for nothing; will alone is great;
All things give way before it, soon or late.
What obstacle can stay the mighty force
Of the sea-seeking river in its course,
Or cause the secending orb of day to wait?
Each well-born soul must win what it desert
Let the fool prate of luck. The fortunate
Is he whose earnest purpose never swerves,
Whose slightest action or inaction serves
The one great aim.
Why, even Death stands still,
And waits an hour sometimes for such a will.

"At the age of twenty-six we find him a man of brilliant repute, married and settled in Richmond."

"In 1845 he wrote the 'Raven.' which first appeared in the American Magazine. He received only $10 for this remarkable poem."

He went on to tell how, on the 7th of October, 1850, Poe died in the city of Baltimore, at the age of forty. Arriving in that city during a warm election, the poet got on a terrible spree. He is said to have fallen in with some reckless companions, who carried him around to eleven precincts, at each of which he voted. He was found at night in a state of boastly intoxication lying in the street. He was removed to the hospital in an unconscious condition. After some time he opened his eyes and looking around him in a dazed way said:

"Where am I?"

"Among your friends," some one replied.

"My best friend," gasped the unfortunate man, "would be he who would blow my brains out."

A short time after this remark he expired.

He would not attempt to give this very difficult piece with the proper elocutionary effect. But notwithstanding all this Mr. Logan read the poem remarkably well. His conception was excellent, and the rendition of the piece was thoroughly enjoyed.

To this company all interests covering the inventions relating to this automatic system of refrigerating were transferred, and during the past two years it has organized many local companies, which have erected large manufactories, cold storage warehouses, and supply stations for refrigerating cars, ships, etc., thus putting the apparatus into operation on an extended scale, and practically testing the value, importance and perfection of the principle, and its endless adaptation to commercial uses. Until the first of the present year the attention of the commercial world had not been called to the results attained by this company. Since the publication of its doings, the demand has been so great that it was found necessary to divide the territory, and separate organizations were perfected for that purpose. One located in St. Louis, another in Chicago, another in Atlanta; the latter under the name of the "REFRIGERATING CONSTRUCTION COMPANY."

This company has been organized by some of Atlanta's best citizens. Mr. C. A. Collier is part which particularly interests the ladies and the gentlemen too. Here are refrigerators of all sizes just as they are designed to be put in residences.

It is indeed an interesting study. The refrigerators are just like any other refrigerators in shape and construction, the only noticeable difference being the presence of half a dozen small frost-covered pipes on the

SNOWBALLS IN JUNE.

It is not often that Atlanta indulges in the luxury of snowballs, and still less often is this luxury indulged in June. It was enjoyed by these visitors yesterday.

On the second floor of the Refrigerating company's building are the cold storage rooms. Into one of these a number of the visitors were ushered. The difference in the temperature was very decided. Colonel George Adair was one of the first to enter. He had been there just half a minute when he asked for a pencil and piece of paper and sent the following to his son Robin:

Bob: Send me that last winter's ulster. Your affectionate

In this room were hung great sides of beef and meats of different kinds; along the floor were many watermelons, and fruits of all kinds were in different parts of the room. The were many watermelons, and fruits of all kinds were in different parts of the room. The iron pipes were covered with frost so thick that some of the 'old 'uns' amused themselves and became young again by making snowballs of it and firing them at one another.

"This feature of our work is probably the most important," said Colonel Bryant, of the New York company. "It is in the PRESERVATION OF MEATS, fruits and vegetables, both in refrigerators and in transportation, that our system is most effective. We more than take the place of ice in this—we fill a want which ice could never fill. The cold which we produce is entirely free from moisture. In the best lee refrigerators, meats cannot be kept a week without begining to rot at the bone, That is due to the moisture in all such refrigerators. Here it is different. The air, as you noticed when you came in, is alear and dry, entirely free from any moistute. We can keep fish, game, meats, or fruits an almost indefinite time without their spoiling or losing the original flavor like they do when frozen. The work of putting our apparatus in refrigerator cars is being perfected. It is easy to see that we will revolutionize the refrigerator car system."

"Here is no conflict."

"We expect to make cold common," said Mr. H. I. Kimball. "It is said that the ice men fear we will injure their business. There is no likelihood of that. There is a vast field unfilled which we expect to fill, and we will not conflict with the ice industry any more than the telephone has interfered with the telegraph, or than the electric light has interfered with gas. We open up a field of our own and egraph, or than the electric light has interfered with gas. We open up a field of our own and propose to diffuse cold to the people." ENTERTAINMENT OF VISITORS.

The visitors were treated to some delicious melons cooled in one of the cold storage rooms, and to some lemonade and punch. The entertainment, like everything else about the institution, was highly enjoyed. The Ladies on Hand.

"Everything was cool but our reception."

Judge Marshall J. Clarke rendered a decision in the injunction case of 0. I. Culberson against the mayor and councilmen of West End.

The petitioner owns a hail in West End.

The town authorities attempted to decide to whom the owner should rent his hail. The owner thought he had a right to control the renting of the hall, so he brought a bill and injunction against the mayor and councilmen to restrain them from restraining him. Judge Clarke decided that his cause was a good one, so gave him the restraining order asked for. The effect of this is to allow Mr. Culber-son to rent to whom he wishes: In the criminal branch of the superior court, Judge Richard H. Read Before the Medical Society of London a Paper on the Use of "Carlsbad Water," of Which the Following is an Abstract: In speaking of those diseases in which the use of Carlsbad Water is indicated I will confine myself to those in which evidence is given for thoroughly es-tablished usefulness. those in which evidences.

First are to be mentioned diseases of the stomach, among them and above all the true Chronic Catarrhal Inflammation, with substantial changes of the mucous membrane, with ulceration and gathering of stringy and often somewhat offensive mucous.

ering of stringy and often somewhat offensive mucous.

The unnatural motions of the stomach causing pressure and belehings, the irritations of the intestines resulting in catarrh of the bowels, and the inflamed mucous membranes are the most fruitful of all known causes of disease. Out of them grow most kidney and liver troubles, diabetes, all rheumatic affections and gout. I have found that the unnatural motions of the stomach cease, the intestinal troubles become soothed, and health results from the use of Carlsbad Water. The dieuretic effect of this water, its quet action upon the lining of the stomach, and its healing power upon the inflamed intestines are beyond all praise.

GOUT is well recognized as arising from excess of uric acid in the blood. This theory is supported by the FAVORABLE ACTION of the Carlsbad Waters.
Dr. Lustig, of Teplitz, issued a pamphlet wherein he recognized the great efficacy of Carlsbad Waters in RHEUMATISM, both acute and chronic, when taken COLD.

Carlsbad Water, is in no sense a mere purgative as RHEUMATISM, both acute and chronic, when taken COLD.

Carlsbad Water is in no sense a mere purgative as most people believe, but is an alternative and eliminative remedy, which dissolves out tenacious bile, allays irritation and removes obstruction BY AID-ING NATURE, and not by sudden and excessive stimulants as most cathartic remedies do. Its action is certain, and a cure when effected is permanent. Not infrequently patients have to use the Sprudel Salt, in addition to the water, as a laxative. Beware of imitations. The genuine is bottled under the supervision of the city of Carlsbad.

Each bottle has the seal of the city and the signature of "Eisner & Mendelson Co.," sole agents, 6 Barclay St., New York, on the neck label.

June 26.—The slight flurry in the stock market occasioned by the nomination of a republican candidate at Chicago, came to an end republican candidate at Chicago, came to an end today, and the market resumed its wonted stegmant and teatureless appearance by the end of the first hour. Little further progress was made in the downward moyement, but this was soon neutralized and prices were maintained at the same-dead level almost throughout the day. NEW YORK, June 26-Hubbard, Price & Co fr their circular today, say: Our today's cotton market was a repetition of yesterday's, and no new features were noticeable. At the outset there was a disposttion here to sell the late months and August. It looks as if the market was well leaded, and increasing offers for the summer months were again on the market all day. Longs for the old crop continue to unlead, at the same time covering sales of the new erop. For the latter an active demand, both to cover and invest, holds up. Tomorrow brings forward notice day for July contracts, and it will be an im-portant factor whether holders will deliver much cotton or prefer to carry their stock at present differences.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions. CHICAGO, June 28.—The opening on 'change to-day was marked be better activity and a firmer tene for certa's than has prevalled for some time, and July wheat took a spart up to 81½e shortly after the opening—an advance over the close last night of 1½e. August advanced ½e over last night, and this made July ½e premium. Prices lost about half the early advance before noon, but the market remained quite firm. quite firm.

Corn was remarkably firm also, and July touched 49c early, but reacted to 48% and again sold above 4834c. Provisions opened slightly higher all around, but

Provisions opened slightly higher all around, but weakened before noon.

A turn appears to have been made in wheat, and the market thad a firm tone today without any special bullish feelings beyond those of a local nature, and the market here received an unusual upward impulse early because of the oversold condition of July, and the delivery of the holdings of a few parties were such that a squeeze for that month was among the probabilities; and, while futures advanced about ite over last night elect, yet the first referred to sent July up 1540 over last night and put if at $46 to sent July up 1% over last night and put it at % premium ove. August. Receipts were 44 ears with but 25 ears expected for Wednesday. The range of prices until near the close of the regular session, was as follows: July opened opened at 80c, sold up to 81½c, back to 80½c, rallied to 80½c, fell back to 80½c again and became steady at about 80½c. Angust also started at 80c, sold up to 80½c, back to 80c and again to 80½c. December opened at 82½c and sold between 82¾@83½. The closing price for July was 80%c.

It was a good day in corn. Prices on the whole advanced about the same as in wheat without the help of any special buying in July. Prices were a shade higher at the closing at 48% for July and 49% for August. The close yesterday was a bulge on big charters and other influences, and a little reaction would not have looked strange. Instead, there was an advance right from the start. July went up to 49% on prefit word huring. to 490 on pretty good buying. August went to 492/cc.
Then eame a reaction of 3/cc, followed by a second bulge, after the estimate of 186 cars for Wednesday was made known. On this July went still higher and touched 493/cc, closing at 483/cc. August touched 503/cc. closing at 493/c.

5014c, closing at 497/c.

There was only a moderate speculative trade in oats, but the parket was strong and advanced a little for the neaker months. There was no special feature, and the strength seemed to be due to sympathy with the other grain markets. July opened at 31%, down to 30%, up to and closing at 31%. Provisions claimed little more than ordinary attention. Not much increase was noticeable in outside trading, yet more general interest was manifested, and between professional transactions reached a fair aggregate. The product was also quite strong, and at the opening prices were higher, being influenced by a mederate run of hogs. Later, however, the movement followed an easier turn, and in lard and pork the morning improvement was more them lost. July pork closed at $18,67%. July lard 8.22%, and July short ribs 7.52%.

Webb, an elderly white man, through his attorney, Mr. Frank Harralson.

Mr. Webb was convicted of being drunk for the third time stneet the passage of the new law, before Judge Anderson, and there was no alternative but to impose the penalty of working at the stockade.

As soon as the sentence was pronounced Mr. Frank Haralson asked that the prisoner be held until a writ of habeas corpus could be taken out.

"The law is unconstitutional," said Mr. Haralson, "and it is an infugitous law. If the labeas corpus case goes against my ellent, it will-be certiforaried and the test as to the validity of the law will be had in the supreme court."

The writ of habeas corpus was filed before Judge Calhoun yesterday afternoon, and the case will be tried this morning.

It is the custom at the stockade to shackle all the male prisoners, white as well as black.

Mr. Webb is an ox-confederate soldier and a member of the Veterans' association of Futon county. He has hosts of friends that will assis him freely in the matter. But aside from the personal solicitude that attaches to the case, the matter will be awaited with a great deal of interest.

The third time law is at stake.

If this case is decided in favor of Mr. Webb, then he law becomes a dead letter and another law must take its place.

OLD DAN DISCHARGED.

Old Dan, for a long time janitor at police headquarters, has returned to the shades of private

The old man bade a tearful adieu to the policemen ahout the station house, and ambled off in a pitithl, heart-broken fashion that said, as plainly as words could say it, "I have been wronged, outraged, insulted. I will not be comforted,"

There is a moral in the story of the old janitor. The first month or so old Dan was a model janitor. He came early and swept head and stayed late. His prospects were good—there's no telling what Dan might have been. But the novelty wors off. Dan got aristocratic and Dan got also.

Marion Harland's Opinion. Marion Harland's Opinion.

Readers of The Constitution are familiar not only with the sprightly writings of Marion Harland, but also with her sound common sense upon matters of every day life and action. Her name, indeed, is a household word, and is equally well known in parlor and kirchen. Her celebrated cook book is without a peer and shows that she has made a careful study of how to prepare good, wholesome food, in the best manner by the best materials. In this issue we produce a face-similie letter from Marion Harland that speaks in the highest terms of the unequaled qualities of the Royal Baking Powder. Housewives everywhere should read the opinion of such an expert and act accordingly. All good cooks, who have used the Royal, are of the same opinion also.

rget it. Come and be joyful. To Our Patrons and the Public Generally We, the undersigned, beg leave by this method to call your attention to the fact, that we have, after much careful thought, and consultation among ourselves, unanimously agreed and decided that we will, on and after the first day of July next, abolish the credit system. The reasons for this action we hope to make plain and satisfactory, in this, our address: In the first place, many of us are, (and in fact nearly all) limited in capital, and unless we resort to this method we must entirely abandon the busito this method we must entirely abandon the business. Our merehandise, from custom (which always makes a stringent law) is not purchasable only for cash. Now, from this one fact, you can at once see, that in trying to run a business with all these uncertainties, such as bad debts, slow collections, and others too numerous mention, the impossibility of making the business remunerative.

In the second place, our per centum (n investment is of small margin, and takes constant and vigilant effort on our part, the very best can be done, to bring it above original outlay.

We could go further and produce many more sufficient rasons for this action, but deem it unnecessary, as we think the foregoing amply sufficient, and hope entirely satisfactory.

In closing this address, we would respectfully ask the public to view it from a business stand-point, and be assured that we have made this move not hastily, but patiently, and with much consideration, and are firmly of the belief that it is not only to our advantage and good, but will also be of vast benefit to our patrons.

A PERJURER PUNISHED.

Given Five Years in the Penitentiary For Swearing Falsely.

A Fight in Court, in Which a Woman, Her Husband and a Lawyer Figure as Combatants—A Lively Scene.

It is seldom that the serene atmosphere of a courtroom is agitated by a conflict so exciting as that which occurred yesterday morning in Judge Richard H. Clark's court.

They who were present will not soon forget the episode; certain the principal actor in the drama will remember it for a long time to

Several weeks ago J. S. Martin was a defendant in the recorder's court, charged with assaulting a negro who had insulted his wife. The prosecutor was named Flemister, and in giving his statement made derogatory remarks touching Mrs. Martin. This made Mr. Martin angry and he resolved to punish Flemister. He knew the statements regarding his wife were false, and he swore out a warrant against false, and he swore out a warrant against Flemister for perjury. The grand jury found a true bill against him, and he was arraigned yesterday morning in Judge Richard H. Clark's court. He pleaded "not guitty." He was defended by Mr. Frank R. Walker.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin were the principal witnesses for the state, but there were others who corroberated their testimony. The case had dragged along its dreary course with not one ripple of excitement, and Mr. Walker had started to address the jury. Most of the jurors and visitors were in a semi-somnolent state, started to address the jury. Most of the jurors and visitors were in a semi-somnolent state, owing to the heavy atmosphere of the court-

As Mr. Walker warmed with his subject he As the water warmed with his subject he spoke in a loud voice and became personal in his allusions to Mrs. Martin. She was sitting near him at the time and was visibly perturbed. As the advocate continued to criticize her harshly she burst into tears.

It was a dramatic scene. The lawyer paused a moment and gave the woman a plereing look. Then he exclaimed: "Weep! Weep! But you should have shed those tears long before you consorted with black—."

Before the sentence was finished Mrs. Martin had sprung to her feet. Seizing a heavy inkstand—the nearest weapon at hand—she exclaimed: "I will not stand that insult," and dashed it at Mr. Walker: Her aim was true, for the ink-stand barely missed the lawyer's head and struck him on the shoulder. The contents bespattered his new stylish coat. The lawyer was as mad as the woman. He picked up a copy of "Greenleaf on Evidence" and faced his assailant. He turned upon her as if to strike her with the book.

Some of the lawyers rose to their feet and the bailiffs began moving toward the belligerents.

"You must not strike her," cried the husband, who sat a few paces away, and was in the act of rising to his feet.

the act of rising to his feet.
"I will," yelled the advocate, as he raised the book.

Mr. Martin now became an active participant in the fight. His weapons were not dangerous, but he managed them with great effect. They were about a dozon apples, which he had in a bag at his side.

The lawyer was the target at which were aimed the green bullets, and he was kept dodging at a lively rate until the ammunition was

One apple hit a bailiff behind the ear, and he yelped with pain. Another barely missed the judge, who sat petrified with astonishment at the unseemly proceeding. Another fell into the judge, who sat petrified with astonishment at the unseemly proceeding. Another fell into the lap of a juior, who showed he was a philosopher. He pulled out his knife, peeled the fruit and smacked his lips with satisfaction as he swallowed it.

"Order! Order!" shouted the court.

"Order! Order!" school Sheriff Greene.

"Order! Order!" screamed a thin-voiced bailiff.

The belligerents seemed willing to suspend hestilities. The woman took her seat. Her husband took his. Order was restored and Judge Clark asked what the disturbance meant. He made the actors in the drama feel that they had violated the rules of court, and had committed a contempt. He had seen the whole thing, so needed no witnesses to tell him what had been done.

He gave Mr. Martin a severe reprimand for his contemptuous behavior and sentenced him

He lectured as severely the woman, but let her off without punishment.

Then he said something to Lawyer Walker.
He censured him for his severity in handling the years.

Mr. Walker resumed his argument to the jury. He first addressed a few words of apology to the court, and he also spoke in behalf of Martin, asking the court to release him from jail.

The jury, after a short consideration, reverdict of "guilty," and Judge Clark penitentiary.

Martin was taken to the county jail, but he remained there only a short while. Judge Clark revoked the sentence.

Mrs. Martin was seen shortly after the adjournment of court and her anger had not cooled down. She threatened to avenge the insult which she thought Mr. Walker had offered her. ntenced Flemister to serve five years in the

They Resolve to Have a Royal Time at the Pledmont Chantauqua Grounds.

"It is all settled," remarked Dr. Amos Fox at the close of last night's meeting, "and we will have a clorious time at the Chautauqua grounds the fourth of July."

"I would not be surprised," said Colonel Thomas, "to see ten thousand people on the ground. It will certainly be the grandest fourth of July celebration held in Georgia since the war."

"I do not think your estimate is an extravagant one," joined in Captain George Forbes, "for when we consider the attractions offered and the remarkably low rates which are to be charged, it seems that half of Atlanta should go up to Salt Springs and enjoy the festivities. Certainly every confederate veteran in Fulton county should be there and participate in the celebration."

Major Starke here remarked: "Gentlemen, county should be there and participate in the celebration."

Major Starke here remarked: "Gentlemen, I have taken part in no end of fourth of July jollifications, but I tell you the one we are new planning will go ahead of anything ever attempted in Atlanta."

Soveral spoke with the same earnestness, and they lingered in the hall talking over the plans for celebrating the Fourth of July.

At 8 o'clock about fifty of the members of the Fulton County Confederate Vetera: a sasociation met in their hall, corner of Whitehall and Alabama streets. It was a special meeting, called by President Calhoun. He took the chair and explained the object of the meeting. It was to consider the question of taking part in the celebration which it is proposed to give at the grounds of the Piedmont Chautauqua the 4th of July.

In the absence of Secretary Frank M. Myers, Captain Forbes acted as secretary.

Colonel B. F. Abbott, in behalf of the committee of the association which was appointed to confer with the directors of the Fiedment Chantauqua relative to the proposed celebration, made a favorable report. He stated that everything had been arranged satisfactorily. Mr. H. W. Grady was invited to address the meeting, and he responded. He explained the nature of the proposed celebration.

Colonel Abbott, Captain Milledge, Judge Calhoun, Major Starke and others, made short speeches in favor of the celebration.

A resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote that the association agree to participate in the grand reunion at the grounds of the Piedmont Chautauqua, July 4th; that a committee make all the necessary arrangements;

Piedmont Chautauqua, July 2th; that a committee make all the necessary arrangements; that President Calhoun be authorized to invite the O. M. Mitchell post of Atlanta to join with the confederate veterans, and that he be also authorized to invite any confederate or federal officers he might see proper, to attend the reunion.

The committee on arrangements consists of Messrs. Abbott, Starke, Webster, Hamilton and Malley. It will hold a meeting this afternoon in Colonel Abbott's office.

At the close of the meeting five or six persons applied for membership in the association.

The meeting was characterized by a great deal of earnestness, and the members came away with the determination to make the reunion a big success.

CRENSHAW'S SCHEME

To Defeat Tom Grimes in the Fourth District.

WILL TRY TO GET UP A DEADLOCK

or Goes Senator Brown and the Savannah Harbor Appropriation.

Washington, June 27 .- [Special.]-It seems that Collector Crenshaw is determined to "down Grimes." The question is "will Tom doit!" Here is what Mr. John W. Hall, of Talbotton, the assistant clerk of the house, says about the political situation in the fourth district, today:

"I have the statement from a creditable gen tleman who is in close proximity and conver-sant with the situation in the fourth district, and who resides in one of the counties north of the mountain, that the estensible friends of Colonel Traylor, in Troup, are seeking only to further their personal political ambitions rather than their sincerity towards Colone Traylor. The gentleman to whom I allude says that a nice slate has been arranged by says that a nice slate has been arranged by Colonel Bingham, of Lagrange. Upon this slate, Colonel H. R. Harris, third assistant postmaster general, Collector Crenshaw, and Mr. Scott McFarlin, of Troup, are to figure. The slate provides that such results shall come from the candidacy of Colonel Traylor, as to bring about a deadlock in the convention, and is to result in the nomination of Colonel Harris. Crenshaw late he made third existent postmarter grows. is to be made third assistant postmaster-general, McFarlin is to take Crenshaw's place in the internal revenue service, and Colonel Traylor to go. The actions of certain gentle-men," continued Mr. Hall, "impresses me with the semblance of truth in the statement, yet I can't think that Colonel Harris is personally participating in such a scheme to defeat Congressman Grimes. I don't think his sense of fustice and his obligations to Muscogee county which ever stood as true to him as did his own county, would permit him to pursue such a policy. If such is the intention of the supposed friends of Colonel Traylor, their object will be defeated. The people will not submit to any such political federation, and when Colonel Traylor sees their object, he will not suffer himself used to further their unjust and nefarious methods."

IN THEIR SEATS AGAIN. Most of the republican members of both house and senate returned from Chicago this morning and put in their appearance at the capitol. The republican side of the house was well filled, for the first time since before the convention, but many seats were vacant on the democratic side, owing to the dinner given by Secretary Whitney at his summer house.

Quite a breeze was created when Pig Iron Kelley moved to lay the tariff bill aside until next December, and then taken up and passed if the people decided to do so at the polls by the election of the democratic ticket. Mr. Mills wanted the vote taken in ten days, but Mr. Reed would agree to nothing but regular consideration by sections, and no agreement could be reached. At the rate they are now proceeding it will be impossible to adjourn before the first of September. However, if it gets very warm here, business will probably be rushed through and adjournment will be had the middle of August. JUDGE FULLER'S CONFIRMATION. Senator Hoar returned from Chicago this morning. He says he found the charges made against Melville W. Fuller totally unfounded. The indications now are that the senate judiciary committee, at its next meetnomination of Mr. Fuller for chief justice. However, it is believed here that had the Chicago convention nominated a man whom the party believed could have been elected, the nomination would have been postponed until after the election. The Star says that General Benja rison, the republican candidate for president went to school in Alexandria for several years His name, carved school-boy fashion on the upper walls of the courthouse, was visible until erased by time and the weather within a few years. He has some connections living in Alexandria. SENATOR BEOWN'S VICTORY.

Senator Brown made a very effective fight in the committee of the whole of the senate today, favoring the committee's amendment of two hundred thousand dollars for Savannah harber, in the river and harber bill. He was vigorously opposed by Senator Edmunds, who objected to giving the amount on the new project to cost six hundred hundred thousand, and thus committing the government to that work. However, Senator Brown fought vigorously and succeeded in gaining his point, althoug Senator Edmunds gave notice that he would again fight the amendment when the bit comes to a vote. Senator Brown is confident the appropriation will not be disturbed.

GEORGE JONES TO BE EXPELLED.

It is understood here that a republican men ber of congress will present a resolution to the next meeting of the Union League club of New York for the expulsion of Mr. George Jones, of the New York Times, from that club on the ground that he is no longer a republican. The New York Star of today containing terviews with many Chinamen of New York city on their preference for president between the two candidates, in which each and every one favored "Hallison" on account of his views on the Chinese question, created much ement among the democratic members of both houses of congress. Mr. A. C. Bruce, of Atlanta, has made application for the supervisorship of the enlarge ment of the public building at Atlanta. His recommendation was signed by Senators Brown and Colquitt and Judge Stewart. The position pays $5 per day or commissions The Democratic Notification Committee. The Democratic Notification Committee.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Members of the democratic national committee and of the notification committee went out to Grasslands, the country home of Secretary Whitney, this evening, where a pleasant time was spent in the enjoyment of the secretary's hospitality. At six o'clock the notification committee, soveral of the national committee, Congressman Wilkins, of Ohio, and a few others, left the city in a special train over the Pennsylvania railroad for Columbus, to formally notify Judge Thurman of his nemination as the democratic candidate for the vice-presidency. Chairman Barnum is hard at work selecting persons for service on the various committees to be appointed by him, but the list will not be completed before tomorrow afternoon, if then.

Chattangoga Enthused Over Harrison.

Chattaneoga Enthused Over Harrison. CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 27.—[Special.]
The most enthusiastic republican meeting over he in Chattanooga assembled in the courthouse tonig to ratify the nomination of Harrison and Morto The courthouse was filled to overflowing, and attornand people stood on the outside. Speeches were made by a number of local politicians. The whole affair wound up by tapping a barrel of cider, and a free distribution of ginger cakes. The neeting was a wonderful success in every particular. Two prominent democrats were among the speakers. They will vote for the republican candidates on account of protection.
